COUNT PAUL MONTE SUES GROVER FOR $50,000

Armed Guards in Court at Scopes Trial

6 MORE ARRESTS FOR PICKWICK COLLAPSE

GROVER ACCUSED BY MONTE OF DEFAMING HIM IN DIVORCE SUIT

Paul A. Monte, who is entitled to call himself "Count," according to his own story, today brought suit for $50,000 against Lydon B. Grover.

Mr. Grover is the Lynn business man who recent suit for divorce from Eleanor C. Grover was a seven weeks' sensation, with Monte named as correspondent.

In the suit, filed in Essex Probate Court at Salem today, "Count" Monte charges malicious defamation of character.

And he emphasizes, not the evidence adduced at the Grover divorce trial, but statements Mr. Grover is alleged to have made since.

MONTE'S CHARGES.
Monte says that it has come to his ears that Grover has been tra-during him to his friends, his business acquaintances and influential persons, from whom he might like to ask assistance.

He accuses the Lynn man of telling these persons that he, Monte, offered to "sell out" Mrs. Grover for a consideration.

According to the declaration, Grover said that Monte told him he would furnish him with evidence for a fresh divorce suit which would

GRAND JURY PROBES JOB OF CURLEY'S KIN

The Suffolk County Grand Jury today heard evidence against Michael P. Curley, cousin of Mayor Curley, who is charged by the Finance Commission with receiving a salary from the City of Boston while giving his time to employment in a downtown store.

City Auditor Rupert Carver and officials of the store where Curley is said to be employed were among those summoned as witnesses, and other city officials were also ordered to be on hand.

Curley receives a salary of $1,500 from the Finance Commission, according to the Finance Commission.

LOTTA'S 'DAUGHTER' SOBS ABOUT BIRTH

Between sobs, Mrs. Ida M. Blum, embury, facing a rigid cross-examination in regard to her birthplace by counsel for the estate of the late Lotta M. Crabtree, whose millions she seeks on the ground that she is Lotta's daughter, declared in brief probate Court today that she admitted she herself could learn all the facts about her birth.

The claimant said that since early

BROCKTON, MARLBORO FLIERS ARE KILLED

Westbury, N. Y., July 13.—First Lieutenant Charles H. Hickey, of Brockton, Mass., and Albert C. Perry of Marlboro, Mass., were killed today when their airplane crashed near here.

The plane went into a tail spin at a height estimated at between 10 and 1,000 feet. It fell in a field and instantly burst into flames.

An ambulance and a wrecker crew were hurried from Mitchell field and the bodies, badly charred, were removed from the flaming wreckage.

Several parties of motorists, passing along motor parkway, a highway passing within 200 feet of the scene of the crash, ran to the burning plane, but were unable to remove the aviators.

Another army airplane, which was in the air, reported the accident to Mitchell field, after the pilot had been unable to make a landing near the wrecked machine.

Lieutenants Hickey and Perry were reserve officers, stationed at Mitchell field for two weeks' training.

These men hold the fate of Scopes in their hands. Some of them cannot read or write and are said to have never heard of evolution until the trial. In the photo are W. L. Green, Sheriff R. B. Harris, W. Purham, T. H. Evans, Rev. James Hinds, R. M. Green, L. N. Rodgers, H. R. Thomas, E. C. Byron, E. A. Odon, S. P. Hood, John Rose, T. E. Benson, J. P. Loney.

LAWYERS ON HAND AS O'BRIEN SENDS FOR INDICTED MEN

With the corridors of the courthouse thronged with prospective counsel, bondmen, curiosity-filled legal lights and plain politicians, six other men indicted in connection with the Pickwick Club collapse were to be arraigned today.

Three men were arraigned on Saturday before Judge Lummus, appointed by Judge Bishop to sit in the Pickwick cases, and today's defendants were to complete the total of nine indicted.

Indictment warrants naming the six additional men were served today by special officers of District Attorney O'Brien's office.

MOB PRIVES ARRESTS OF JAPS OUT OF TOWN

Mill Workers in Oregon Are Seized and Then Carried Away Trucks

Toledo, Ore. July 13 (A.P.)—Overcoming a misstatement of armed guards of the Pacific Spruce Corporation's mills here, a mob of about 400 men, women and children rushed up the company's laborers, loaded them into motor trucks and carried them beyond the city limits.

No weapons were used in the fighting with the guards, but the mob were armed by their "higher ups" and a deputy and the mob dispersed.

The guards of at least fifty other participants were taken by the mob, it was said.

The trouble was the result of a disagreement of several weeks' standing between certain laboring groups as the company over the employment of Japanese labor at its company's sawmill.

The mob in the street will follow a list but Gary men meeting in the streets, at which agitators incited the crowd.

There was a lot of men waving in American flag.

Miss Catherine A. Dondy of Boston, who has made big success of radiator heater factory left her by her father.

When Catherine A. Dondy of No. 48 Cornhill was a little girl, she probably had the dreams of the average little girl.

Tommy of blinding success on the stage, of triumph in the world of thousands sitting enthralled under her voice.

But, although woman, like man, person, she has a way of disposing of her money, she is a woman.

When she took over the radiator factory from her father her only condition, if such it was, was a liberal one.

At once and enrolled her at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She studied thermodynamics and economics and business finance, and a lot of other things unrelated to French verbs, college proms and romance as it is understood among women.

In 1918, having been successful in her work, she had her name printed on the office door. In the dull period just after the World War she earned the business doing for a veteran.

For a woman, eleven a woman, however, Miss Dondy proves it in the advertisement she sent out. In it she stresses the "scientific and efficient" of her radiator.

Miss Dondy is personally interested in her work. At first she found some engineers and scientists hard to deal with. "They wouldn't believe a woman could 'make the grade'."

The woman engineer manufacturer in the state of the late St. Paul Dondy, who requested $10,000 in 1919.

FRIENDS BOOM JUDGE DILLON FOR HIGH POST

Friends of Judge David F. Dillon, former district court and of Attorney General, G. Brownson of Springfield, are boosting him as a possible material for Gov. Fuller to consider in filling his vacancies on the Superior Court bench this fall.

Judge Dillon has had Superior Court experience. He was the first district court justice chosen under the 1923 law for drafting such justices to serve on the Superior Court bench to help clear overloaded dockets.

Atty. Brownson of Springfield, grandnephew of Chief Justice Brownson of New York, entered Sheffield Scientific School at Yale but switched to law and was graduated from Yale Law School. He is a leader of the Hampden county and has had much experience as author and special master.

He is a Congregationalist and Republican.

DEVENS GETS HUSBAND CRUEL DOWN TO REAL WAR GAME

MRS. WAITT CHARGES

Camp Devens, July 13.—The 8,000 members of the 26th Division, Massachusetts National Guard, encamped here, have settled down to the real war game.

When the police arrived down on the place early yesterday forty-three men were gathered about a billiard table which had been converted into a crap table. Money was piled high in front of the players and hundreds of dollars, often times thousands, changed hands on every roll of the dice.

The resort, known as the most notorious gaming house in New England, was also known as a "square" place. The dice were known to be on the level, the house management contenting itself with a percentage of all winnings.

The table the authorities learned in connection with their investigation are almost beyond belief. One man, intoxicated, entered the game with a $5 note and within a short time, by pyramiding his winnings, he ran this up to $24,000.

He was then contemptuously asked to retire from the game and was furnished an escort to his home.

The club management employed "strong-armed men" to escort heavy winners to their homes, offering the protection from thugs without charge of any kind.

OUT ON $100 BAIL TACH.

The police further learned that every effort was made to admit to the club only those persons who could afford to lose considerable money. A man unknown to those operating the place could not secure admission under any consideration.

Old gamblers declare that in this resort the law was the highest in the country.

It was the mothers and sisters of several of the heavy losers who were kept off the premises by the presence of the resort.

The forty-three men taken in the raid, all of whom were released on bonds of $100 each, are scheduled for a hearing in the District Court today, but it is believed a majority will elect to forfeit the bail rather than appear.

STUBS TOE AND DIES AS A RESULT

An injury to his foot as a result of having stubbed his toe at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clyde Smith on Washington D. C. street, the death of Edward C. Pinkham of Lynn, a former sea captain.

AINING BOSTON POLICE FUNDS

Walter Bucklin, president of the National Shawmut Bank, depository for funds, and, above, Beatrice Kaye of the "Rose Marie" Company, who will take part in the benefit.

BENEFITS WILL AID FUND FOR HERO POLICE

Mrs. Anna Halleran, widow of Policeman Paul F. Halleran, killed in the Pickwick Club disaster, is being showered with congratulations for her sympathetic action in turning over her portion of the fund being raised by the Boston Evening American to Mrs. Benjamin Alexander and six small children.

Although her own heart is breaking from the ordeal through which she is passing, Mrs. Halleran stopped long enough to consider the much more predicament of Mrs. Alexander. After carefully thinking the matter over, she decided not to accept a penny of the fund which this newspaper started raising for both families. She wants every cent to go to the Alexander kiddies and their mother.

IS GRATEFUL.

Mrs. Halleran says she is grateful to the Boston Evening American for its thoughtfulness in starting the fund in her behalf and she also thanks those who contributed to help her.

Boston lawyers, who know the worth of the nation who compose the police department of this city, are responding to the appeal for funds.

One of the first Boston attorneys

James Jackson, former State Treasurer, who will serve as one of the fund trustees, of whom Mr. Bucklin is chairman.

to contribute to the Boston Evening American's fund was Robert Gallagher, one of the best known legal lights of the Hub.

HOPES ALL WILL AID.

Attorney Gallagher's contribution of $10 was accompanied by the following appreciation:

"When brave men go to their deaths while in the public service their sacrifices should not be in vain and their families should not want for the necessities of life on account of those sacrifices. Every policeman and fireman is in constant danger of death while serving the public and I believe that too few realize that fact. I have always had utmost admiration for the policeman and fireman of Boston and it gives me great pleasure to enclose check for $10."

"I hope every lawyer in Boston will contribute something. I hope that God, in his mercy and kindness, will help lessen the grief that the families of these brave men must now be experiencing. The Boston Evening American is to be commended for starting this fund."

The fund will be awarded by nearly $1,000 within a few hours as a result of the activities of former Police Inspector Morris Wolf and Police Inspector James R. Claffin. Arrangements are being made to make collections in various shops, stores and factories. In each instance these collections are property authorized.

Many athletic organizations are planning various things for the purpose of increasing the fund. They are arranging collections at athletic events, picnics, etc. Benefit games are also being discussed.

PLAN TWO BENEFITS.

Plans are being perfected for the two big benefit shows in behalf of the American fund. The first of these will be an operatic performance on Lafayette Hall, Boston Common, opposite West street, tomorrow night, with all members of the "Rose Marie" company, now playing at the Shubert Theatre, singing. Those who witness it will be given an opportunity of contributing. No admission will be charged. The chorus girls of this fine musical comedy will play the role of messengers at the conclusion of the show on the Common, and every cent they get from the sale of newspapers will be turned into the fund. A special stand will be erected through courtesy of City Park Commissioner James Egan.

The other benefit will be given in Waldron's Casino during the week of August 3 by Charles H. Waldron, owner. A large number of entertainers have already volunteered their services for the occasion. Mr. Waldron assures the public that a rattling fine entertainment will be presented.

"Through courtesy of Walter Bucklin, president of National Shawmut Bank, the banking institution of which he is head, will also act as a depository for funds. Persons desiring to help may send their contributions to "Pickwick Disaster Police Fund, National Shawmut Bank, Boston, Mass." or to "Pickwick Disaster Editor, Boston Evening American, Winthrop square, Boston, Mass."

BOMB WRECKS PROPERTY OF POLITICIAN

Explosion Rocks Many Other Buildings at Niagara Falls, N. Y.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 12.—An explosion, believed to have been caused by a dynamite bomb, wrecked a two-story brick and frame store and dwelling in East Falls street early today.

The building was owned and occupied by Joseph La Tona, an insurance agent and supervisor from the Third Ward.

Fire followed the explosion, and the building and contents are a total loss. The damage is estimated at $20,000. No one was injured, all members of the La Tona family being out of the city.

The blast rocked other buildings for a block, throwing tenants from their beds.

La Tona recently announced his candidacy for re-nomination as supervisor. Police believe political enemies caused the explosion.

Guardian Crew Pulls Man From Water After Waves Hurl Him From Boat

William Rose, aged thirty-eight, of Russell street, Somerville, owes his life to the prompt work of the crew of the Boston police boat Guardian.

When Rose was thrown from a motorboat in Boston Harbor of the North Island Light, he would likely have drowned save for the work of the Guardian. The rescue was witnessed by more than 200 passengers on the steamship Nahant of the Nahant Line.

The backwash from the Nahant threw Rose into the water from his motorboat while companions in the craft were helpless on account of the high waves stirred up by the Nahant boat.

Will Tag Mackerel to Solve Mystery of Migrations

Washington, July 13 (A.P.)—Mysterious movements of mackerel schools, which for years have troubled North Atlantic fishermen, have come under scrutiny of Commerce Department experts at Woods Hole, Mass.

Mackerel universities are being formed, where the fish is abundant one season are found entirely barren the next.

Their movements are so varied that the government experts now will capture, tag and recapture batches of mackerel to determine their migratory habits.

HARVARD MEN GET $56,000 FOR RESEARCH

Professor Reiser, Egyptologist, One of Beneficiaries by William F. Milton Fund

An average of more than $2,000 each for research work has been awarded to twenty-seven professors in Harvard College. The total award was $56,000, and it will be used to cover the cost of research in medicine, the physical sciences and other spheres.

The award is provided in the legacy left the university by William F. Milton. By the terms of the legacy the income, which is approximately $20,000 a year, is to be used to defray expenses of investigation "in the interests of the physical and mental welfare and prosperity of the human race."

Among the professors who have been awarded money from the legacy is Professor George E. Reiser, continuing his research work at the pyramids of Giza, Egypt.

In Boston Kellogg's outsell all others 4 to 1

FROM the day W. K. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, first originated corn flakes, Kellogg's always have been the favorite by long odds.

Right here in Boston these odds are four to one!

Throughout the country more than ten million people every day insist on getting Kellogg's.

Just one trial will show you the reason for this huge national preference.

Kellogg's are corn flakes as they ought to be! No others bring such crisp, crunchy flakes.

... Or such incomparable flavor.

Serve Kellogg's with cold milk or cream—or with fruit added. They're never tough-thick! Never leathery! Keep you fit and cheery these hot days.

Sold by all 'grocers. Served at all hotels and restaurants.

Kellogg's CORN FLAKES

Imitations cannot bring you such wonderful flavor—such crisp, crunchy flakes. The only genuine corn flakes have the signature of the originator.

RUNYON SAYS TITLE HEAVY MATCH IS BREWING

'DEMPSEY MAY GET $750,000'

Fine Steam-Up Now on; Talk of a $2,000,000 Gate for Clash

CLOSE study reveals familiar signs and portents convince me that the old "steam up" is once more upon us.

A heavyweight championship match is in the making. The many moons have waxed and waned, as the fellow and, Mr. Jack Dempsey, the world's champion, now bounding about on the broad bosom of the Atlantic, will be matched to meet Mr. Harry Wills, who is doing some bounding in the opposite direction.

Mr. Harry Wills, as you recall, is the down-trodden scoundrel whose biographers have made much of the fact that he was once compelled to go to work because he couldn't find time to occupy himself.

Mr. Wills has happily emerged from this dire predicament. If one may judge from the fact that he was able to spend a trifling $10,000 recently incurred him for his prodigious five-minute effort in flattening Mr. Charles Weinert, the celebrated Newark Laydownman, as my friend, Battling Keefe, has it.

Be that as it may, I predict that within a few months the best athletes will be reeling to the rumble of the typewriters printing out the news and nonsense of the impending annihilation between "The Man from the South" and "The Brown Panther of New Orleans." You can't mistake the signs and portents.

MR. DEMPSEY has said he will never fight again, which is one reason why I think it is easily 100 to 1 that he will fight again. Experience has taught me to copper more of Mr. Dempsey's assertions than I do that way.

But even if he hadn't and anything whatever, I am now convinced that he will fight Mr. Harry Wills because of the sheer power of the "steam-up."

It will presently reach such intensity that some pop-eyed optimistic promoter will suggest forward and offer Mr. Dempsey so much money that he can't refuse.

It will be so much that Mr. Dempsey will not have to worry as to the outcome of the battle. He will be fixed for the balance of his days, and that, after all, is the ultimate of all the human struggle, isn't it?

Mr. Dempsey can either train conscientiously for it, which will mean undergoing mental and physical travail, or he can follow the system of other old champions when they finally weary of the grind, and merely get a haircut and shave and let it go at that, philosophically reflecting that if he loses he is at least free from the burden of the crown.

It finally gets to be something of a load, no doubt of that. Old Jack Johnson, relieved of his agonizing duddism at Havana by the ponderous Willard pool in his corner with a towel wrapped around his head, which gave him the aspect of an awed slave and as he got it out over the milling crowd acclaiming the new champion, he said to me:

"Well, now maybe they'll let me alone."

He was a very tired old negro at that moment, but there was a note of intense relief in his voice.

MR. DEMPSEY must have had something of the same feeling of weariness when he talked of retiring not long ago. But where Jack Johnson got $20,000 for passing on the black man's burden, Mr. Dempsey can get in the neighborhood of $750,000; all depends on how optimistic the pop-eyed promoter may be.

That kind of money will cure, or at least relieve, any tired feeling.

By the time the "steam-up" reaches a head I am inclined to think the fight will draw $2,000,000, if they can find an enclosure large enough.

Harris Proves to Be Smarter Than Tris Speaker

Although it's only mid-season, Stanley Harris is enjoying a quiet chuckle at the expense of the Brooklyn and Cleveland clubs because of death he made last winter. No one wanted Stanley Coveleski when the Indians put the Polish spitball pitcher on the market.

Harris grabbed him, and Coveleski has proved the sensation of the American League, with eleven victories and only one defeat to date. Dutch Ruether is only a peg or two behind Coveleski. And besides proving he was far from through as a pitcher, Dutch has turned out to be a valuable pinch-hitter for the Senators.

The new type of radio tube which has been designed to operate directly from the lighting circuit of homes will not cause radical changes in the radio world, according to Arthur H. Lynch, editor of Radio Broadcast, who has just completed a survey after a nationwide investigation of the situation which arose when the new type tube was announced.

The new tube, he states, will never completely substitute the average battery tube even where electrical current is available, owing to necessary changes in the wiring of the set and the outfit of tubes. The survey, however, indicates that a great improvement in the radio life of the two weeks ago is possible, the matter and the first of the tests made in the laboratory of Radio Broadcast are corroborated by a general estimate of the latest radio magazine in the United States. The survey was prompted as an aid to the radio industry and the radio public, both of whom had become alarmed over the matter, but states that at the new A.C. tubes will exist in the radio and order the latest present-day receivers.

A tube to operate directly from the house lighting circuit is, of course, a development to be desired in the radio art," said Mr. Lynch in his survey. "In a recent editorial in Radio Broadcast, Professor J. H. Morecroft has pointed out the limitations of the present-day radio set and the possibilities of an A. C. tube. But before such a tube will make a large impression on the radio buying public it must, of course, perform as satisfactorily as a storage battery tube and be as economical to operate. As far as the radio industry is concerned, there are countless homes throughout the country where electrical current is not available and even if it were, quiet tube operation, which means quality reception in radio, is more to be desired than the mere display of a storage battery.

"But because we have operated very successfully various types of radio circuits equipped with storage batteries, but deriving the electrical attention from the house lighting circuit. This was made possible by the employment of auxiliary devices which are sold everywhere and which will shortly appear on the market. Therefore, the radio public need have no apprehension regarding the present radio equipment to be used in the case of a power outage. It is now available to all."

It is wonderful for painted walls and woodwork, too. Just sprinkle a little on a soft cloth, wet in warm or hot water and gently rub the surface to be cleaned and you do not have to rub hard one bit.

Every bride or every experienced housewife will want to keep a can hidden under the tub in the bathroom or perhaps in the boxes that so many housekeepers keep tucked away behind the tub to hold cleaning cloths, scrubbing brush, etc.

I am sorry that I cannot give the name of this cleaner here but drop me a line and not only will I tell you the name of this cleaner but I will see that you get a good price for free. This offer is for all of my club members.

2 tablespoons butter
Salt
Yolk of 1 egg
Pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Paprika
Cream, if necessary

Put the butter, egg yolk, lemon juice, salt, pepper and paprika into a double boiler, over which is on a warm water bath on the stove and stir constantly until it thickens. If too thick, thin with cream.

1/4 onion chopped, fine
 1 green pepper, chopped fine
 6 ears of corn, cut from cob
 (canned corn can be used)
 4 tomatoes, sliced thick
 2 tablespoons butter
 3 long slices of bacon, cut in small pieces
 1 cup bread crumbs
 Put half the corn in the bottom of a baking dish. Over it put half the tomatoes and sprinkle them with the onion and green pepper and butter and dot with butter. Then put in the remainder of the corn, then the remainder of the tomatoes. Sprinkle the bread crumbs on top, add more salt and pepper, and lastly dot the top with the bits of bacon.
 Bake from 1/2 to 1 hour and serve. T. A. will give 4 good portions.

Thoroughly wash and sterilize used jars, tops, rubbers and lids. Have a kettle of boiling water ready for use. Have preserving kettle two thirds full of rapidly boiling water in which to plunge the vegetables. Have a dishpan half-full

LESSON NO. 9

EARPHONES

Earphones for radio work have a resistance of approximately 2000 ohms. The resistance necessarily runs this high on account of the great amount of fine wire which is wound on the magnets. This large amount of wire is necessary in order to obtain a response from the weak radio currents. Phones of lower resistance are not commonly used because of this fact.

There is no need to worry about polarity. With a tube set, however, you should always connect the marked terminal of your headset to the output blinding post which connects with the B battery. This will prevent demagnetizing of the phones.

1. Preparation of vegetable and direct

Note—A loosely woven cheesecloth bag is a great convenience in plunging beans. An ordinary large colander sieve which just fits the preserving kettle is suitable for all other large vegetables.

3. Plunge the vegetables in boiling water
4. Remove and drain in a colander. The vegetables are now ready to be canned.
5. Have the jars partly filled with boiling water, after thoroughly sterilizing
6. Empty one jar at a time. To every quart jar allow 1 teaspoon of salt. A pinch of bicarbonate of soda helps to prevent fat-sour in beans and peas
7. Fill the jars with vegetables. Shake down, then pour in slowly boiling water, until full. Run a large silver spoon handle down sides to let out all air.

Who will be next to try my Piano Lessons? Free and Learn How to Play Music by Notes in Three Lessons

Every lover of music should send for these lessons. They are absolutely free—they will teach you more in one hour than you can learn in an entire week studying by any other method. Prove to yourself that you can become an accomplished pianist—or organist—without spending a single penny for the test. The lessons are for beginners or advanced players—they start you from the very beginning. No previous training necessary.

Why My Lessons Are Interesting

Unlike most methods, I do not give you tedious exercises to play. Beginning with the third lesson I actually start you playing a popular piece of music. Not only will you play it in the key in which it is written, but in all other keys. Sometimes a pupil is required to study at least a year before being given a piece of sheet music to play. Thus, by my method, you actually begin to see results in less than a week's time. See for yourself how I make this possible by sending for the trial lessons at once.

Why These Lessons Are Sent FREE

A great many music lovers who are anxious to learn piano or organ hesitate to start because they fear they are unable to learn. Every normal person is naturally endowed with some musical talent. The proper training can develop this talent to the utmost. There are a comparatively small number of teachers gifted with this art. Many would study music—but dread the many years it ordinarily requires to become an accomplished musician and feel that the effort is not worth the reward. Others cannot afford the hundreds of dollars it ordinarily costs to become an accomplished musician.

I have been teaching for more than thirty-five years—by the written method, and in the last five years have enrolled more than seventy thousand pupils for my course. Thus I have been able to analyze the various types of music lovers and adapt my course accordingly.

Because I use scientific methods, and inventions which no other teacher can use, it takes only one-quarter the time to learn my way.

Because I can teach thousands of pupils where the ordinary teacher can only teach one the price of my instruction is only a few cents a lesson.

If you will fill out and mail the coupon below I will send you by return mail the first two lessons of my course—if you have studied them, you will then know why I can teach you piano better, and in one-fourth the time ordinarily required. Remember, this does not obligate you in any way. The lessons are yours to keep, put them to the test you desire. I know you will be surprised and delighted to know how easily you can learn piano studying my way.

Free Book "How to Learn Piano"

With the lessons I will also send you an interesting free book—"How to Learn Piano." This booklet contains a lot of information valuable to every music lover. It also fully describes my methods, and will tell you of many people—giving their names and addresses—who have succeeded by my method. Among my pupils are children as young as ten years, and adults as old as seventy. Many who are engaged in business during the day, have found by studying only fifteen minutes each day—they were able to realize their ambitions to become accomplished musicians. Many of my graduates are now teaching, or playing professionally. My booklet will give you other valuable information on how you may benefit by being an accomplished pianist. Be sure to mail the coupon today.

BOY FALLS 50 FEET FROM WINDOW; DIES

While three-year-old Arthur Gompes of No. 148 St. Botolph street, was leaning against a screen in the kitchen window of his home, the screen fastenings gave away and the boy fell fifty feet to the back yard. William Howard, janitor of the building, saw the falling form of the child and rushed to catch it. He succeeded in barely touching the body and breaking the fall, but the boy was found to have a fractured skull when picked up. He died a few minutes later. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gompes.

General Butler Tired of Political Fighting

Brigadier-General Smedley Butler of the United States Marines, who became director of public safety in Philadelphia for the purpose of cleaning up that city, is discouraged. Weary of fighting crime, he announced: "I do not want any more political jobs. I've had enough of serving the people."

In a statement like that from so good a fighter as General Butler there is something almost sad. His explanation does not alter the impression.

"I have not been fighting crime and vice," said he, "so much as I have been fighting political influence that opposed me at every turn."

Of course! That is what every upright man in every public office of consequence has to do. For that reason in politics are needed good men and true.

Few who honestly and fearlessly serve the public are appreciated. The bigger the service, the less likely is appreciation to come to them during their lives.

Really great fighters for humanity—for the people—seldom get the high reward they earn; but they are too wise to resent that. They know the blindness of human nature too well; and they go on fighting, keep on serving, with dogged virtue. That is why they are really great.

In the continuity of human life, flowing on endlessly, an individual lifetime isn't very much. No man, during the brief period he is whirled along in that great stream, can hope to make it pure and sweet. But he may be able to make it a little less angry and turbulent by struggling against evil cross currents and trying to turn them back into mid-channel. In doing that he may not be much glory to be won, but men who can fight like General Butler are needed for the thankless effort it requires. Philadelphia will be a heavy loser by his retirement.

Schools and Religion

In PUBLIC SCHOOLS, Separate

In British Columbia the children of the Doukhobers, a curious religious Russian sect, go to the public schools, but refuse to recite the Lord's Prayer.

Their parents instruct them to say that all they want are the three Rs and Russian hymns. There is common sense in this. A SCHOOL should teach the three Rs; RELIGIOUS teachers should teach the theory of the Trinity, the three in one, and all other religious teachings. Parents that wish to do so should have full liberty to send their children to schools maintained by themselves, where religion is taught with arithmetic.

But the public school should force no kind of religion on any child. It is just as natural to learn spelling, geography and arithmetic without religion mixed in as it is to learn horseshoeing or basket making.

At least, that's the AMERICAN theory. Every father and mother has a right to any other theory, provided it doesn't call for the expenditure of public money.

Worth $50,000?

Yes, and $50,000,000

A wise editor asks, "Is it worth $50,000 a year?" He refers to our United States Shipping Board and the fleet of ships owned by the government.

The answer is, that if the government could have its ships ready, for its own use, to carry its own soldiers and its own supplies in case of war, fifty MILLIONS a year WOULD BE DIRT CHEAP for such preparedness.

Those that complain of losses by the Shipping Board should not forget the "ancient history" of only seven years ago. In a great hurry, with loud yells of patriotism, with unlimited secret grafting, the fiscal patriots of this country spent three thousand million dollars getting ready ships—of which many were hardly worth junking.

Fifty millions a year is only 5 per cent. on ONE thousand millions. If by spending 5 per cent. of ONE thousand millions we can avoid squandering SUDDENLY THREE thousand millions, and getting nothing for the money, then fifty millions WOULD BE VERY CHEAP.

Ford's Flying Mail

It Would Be Welcome

If Henry Ford is really going into air mail distribution on a big scale, that is IMPORTANT NEWS to this country's progress and safety.

Mr. Ford is alleged to be ready with $10,000,000 to map out an air mail service, gradually to cover the entire country. Ford believes that his flying machines can carry the mails profitably at the rate the government now pays. And he knows something about costs.

Mr. Ford's plan is not merely to connect Chicago, Detroit and the Lake Cities with the Atlantic, but to run, as he should do, across the Continent to the cities of the Pacific Coast.

Such development of flying machines in connection with air mail would solve the Nation's defense problem.

There is no doubt President Coolidge will do all he can to co-operate in such an enterprise.

Use Copper or Brass

And Save Your Money

Copper sells at a very low price. Intelligent builders should learn how much roofing space a pound of copper will cover and how far copper goes in water pipes as compared with iron. Copper is indestructible, never rusts. For any uses, it is cheaper at fourteen cents, or forty cents, than iron at any price.

How Inventors Are Made

Mr. Hearst Points Out that Earthquakes in California Take Slight Toll of Life

MR. HEARST received a kind inquiry from Sir Joseph Duveen asking if he had been in any way discommoded by the earthquake of Santa Barbara. Mr. Hearst wrote a letter in reply, which is published herewith:

San Simeon, Cal., July 9, 1925.

Sir Joseph Duveen,
New Bond St., London, England.

My dear Sir:—I received your kind telegram of inquiry and appreciate your interest.

As a matter of fact, however, there was no earthquake here in San Simeon. San Simeon is 200 miles away from Santa Barbara, and there was practically no earthquake injury even at Montecito, which is only five miles away from Santa Barbara.

Santa Barbara itself is near an earthquake fault and had a severe earthquake before—113 years ago. It is a small town of 30,000 inhabitants. Most of the buildings that collapsed were of the flimsy, sea-side resort character.

Twelve people were killed. It is regrettable, of course, that any were killed, but many more were killed in the collapse of the Pickwick dance hall in Boston, and at the fire in the moving picture theatre in Kansas City, and during the worst heat wave in New York. And nobody gets hysterical over those catastrophes.

The plain facts are that earthquakes in California, which occur at intervals—the last one having occurred at San Francisco 30 years ago—kill far fewer people in these 20-year periods than the cyclones in the Middle West, the floods and tornadoes in the South coast States, and the lightning storms and heat waves along the Atlantic States kill EVERY YEAR.

Another thing which people forget is that California is an enormous State and that something may occur in some part of it without the people in other parts of the State knowing anything about it except through the newspapers.

California is 1,000 miles long. It would reach from New York City to Milwaukee, Wis., and you can easily understand that something might occur in Illinois, or Wisconsin, or Indiana without the people in New York City being very much affected by it.

Sometimes take a map of the United States and fold it over so that the west coast will fall on top of the east coast, and you will see that California stretches from Massachusetts down through Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina to South Carolina.

When the Charleston earthquake occurred, suppose somebody had sent a telegram to friends in Boston saying, "I hope you were not injured in the earthquake." That seems very silly, but it is no more any truer from the facts than people thinking that their friends in California 200 or 300 miles away from a local earthquake shock are in danger from that shock.

I am 62 years old and have lived in California most of my life, and I have never yet felt an earthquake tremor that amounted to anything. Once I was in a hotel when the channel rattled and somebody said it was an earthquake, but I thought the man in the room above me had dropped his shoes on the floor. It did not make me very much worried.

as the Elevated train going by in a New York street, or the subway trains running under the Rue de Rivoli in Paris.

And that is the plain truth and no embellishment. However, don't understand me as maintaining that earthquakes don't occur in California. They do. About every 20 or 25 years an earthquake of some consequence occurs somewhere over our thousand miles of longitude. And that is exactly as if I said that every 20 or 25 years an earthquake might occur somewhere along the Atlantic coast, either in Massachusetts, or in Connecticut, or in New York, or in New Jersey, or in Pennsylvania, or in Delaware, or in Maryland, or in Virginia, or in North Carolina, or in South Carolina.

If that were the situation in the East, nobody would stay awake much at night worrying about their friends on the Atlantic seaboard. Californians don't wholly approve of earthquakes, but they prefer them to cyclones, or tornadoes, or floods, or protesting heat, or lightning storms. The earthquakes don't come so often and they don't cause so much loss of life. In fact, all of the earthquakes which have occurred in California since it was discovered, nearly 400 years ago, have not killed as many people as the great cyclones which swept across southern Illinois in the Spring of this year.

A friend of mine, Frank Barham, publisher of the Los Angeles Herald, says that California, with all its wealth of gold mines, oil wells, fruit and grain and cotton and corn, with its marvelous roads and its splendid harbors, its great industries and growing exports (for the harbor of Los Angeles is now second in exports only to New York's) should have some little kind of drawback, or else all the people of the United States would be crowding out to California and keeping the Californians themselves from making the money they do, and should, out of their State's astonishing riches and resources.

Mr. Barham's sentiments remind me of my father's. I was born when I was a youngster to St. Paul's School and Harvard College and experienced the rigors of the Eastern climate. When I was back in California for a while I said: "Father, it is too bad the people of the East don't know what a wonderful State California is." My father said: "Son, it is not too bad at all, because if they did know they would all come out here and crowd us native Californians into the Pacific Ocean."

Any father continued: "It is a lucky thing that the Eastern coast of this continent was settled first, because if it had not been settled first, it never would have been settled at all."

That is the way Californians feel about their State and its attractions and advantages. And when you are out here in the sparkling sunshine, with the soft breezes from the Pacific keeping the air cool and healthful, with the flowers blooming riotously all about, and fruits of all kinds hanging heavy from the trees, when you skin over the wonderful concrete roads in your auto, and drive from the orange groves of the South to the redwood forests of the North, or from the sunny seacoast to the snow clad high Sierras; when you see so little poverty and misery, and so much health, and happiness and prosperity, you are almost disposed to sympathize with the Californian's point of view.

Very Sincerely Yours,
WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

LOVE, MARRIAGE AND FRIENDSHIP

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHAT makes marriage in the first place is Love. What keeps marriage and what makes it successful to the end is Friendship.

As a rule, Love comes. It is a part of Nature. It arises in us from our fundamental instincts. We do not have to manufacture it nor to force it. It sweeps us on.

With Friendship, it is different. For Friendship requires intelligence. More than that, it requires character; and all our resources of self-mastery, culture and courage.

Many things have been mentioned as essential to a happy marriage, such as tact, children, good cooking, the continuation of romance, a sense of humor, self-control, good temper, candor, discretion, identity of interests and the like.

But the most satisfactory answer is that any marriage is successful in proportion as Love passes over into Friendship. A recent writer expresses this cheerful view:

"This is an age of happy marriages. I make the statement with perfect confidence in spite of divorce court figures, in spite of unhappy sex novels, in spite of depressing sex plays. There never was a time when men and women had less reason to be afraid of marriage. And the explanation is simply this—our modern capacity for friendship."

There are greater friendships between men and men than ever there were before. There are greater friendships between women and women. And there are better and finer friendships between men and women than there were twenty or fifty years ago.

"Our interests are less isolated than they were. Our growing love of travel, our increased habits of reading, our clubs and our games have all helped to make deeper friendships. Men and women when they come to marry, know something about the art of being friends."

Marriage is an institution which is a product of social evolution. We have not arrived at monogamy by any artificial devices, neither by laws of the State, nor even by authority of the Church. We have arrived there simply because man and more the social experience as well as the ideal of life makes it the only satisfactory way. The only way to get along with our primary instincts and not have them play smash with our finer interests is in the loyal union of one man and one woman.

It is Friendship that salvages Love after the wreckage of passion.

It is Friendship that weaves companionship into a more solid fabric when the fires of passion have died down.

The greatest thing in the world is Love. But the greatest kind of Love is that which is able to create and continue a great Friendship.

SELF-DECEPTION AND LEVITATION

By Garrett P. Servis

Nobel Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE proponents of the mystic phenomena, produced by "mediums," who usually believe, or whose sponsors profess to believe for them, that they are actuated by "control" "leading out of the realm of the physically dead, continue to invite attention to their proceedings, to which they give the name of "scientific investigation."

No one can deny that the subject is attractive to intelligent curiosity, as anything which arouses the attention of great numbers of people must necessarily be so. But, unfortunately, the "investigators" usually permit themselves to be hampered by restrictions as to light and so to other essential conditions of free and unfettered inquiry, and their opinions are regarded as conclusive or as having evidential value for credulous.

But there is one alleged phenomenon among the "physical manifestations" which seems to offer a way of penetrating this obscure thicket of human psychology by which any really earnest investigator could proceed without, so much darkness, stumbling and getting mired in the darkness.

I refer to what is called "levitation." This, of course, is no new subject, but has never, to my knowledge, been investigated independently of the mediums and with out connection with their thaumaturgic seances.

Everybody has heard of it; many in every community have witnessed purported exhibitions of it, given some as a part of the entertainment at an evening party.

In substance, levitation consists of the "lifting," without effort, of the body of a person nearly all of whose weight seems mysteriously to disappear, and the body rises. The conventional formula requires that the person who is to be "levitated" should extend himself on the floor, or on a couch, or a couple of chairs, in such manner that two other persons may place the tips of their fingers under the sides of his body.

All then, including the experimenters, take a number of long breaths, in strict unison, and at the tenth, or some other indefinite agreed upon beforehand, the levitator raises his hands steadily upward, and up with them, supported by the fingers of the lifters, goes the body of the levitated.

Some who have tried this experiment in my presence have asserted that they made no effort whatever in the act of lifting, but that the person seemed to go up as if floating. Others admit that they made a very slight weight, but not comparable with the real weight of the body lifted.

When I myself have been asked to lift or play the part of the levitated, the experiment has failed. Yet these "stuntmen" have been quoted as statements I have quoted are reports of what happened to be a very honest I could not doubt, and which I am sure supposed to have been strangely self-deceived, a position which they stoutly combat.

A year or so ago a published report of what purported to be a scientific investigation of levitation, unconnected with mediums or seances, was sent to me. I was much interested in it, but my recollection is that it was the work of a levitator who had performed on the platform of a weighing machine some 10 per cent. of his weight was undoubtedly missing. That seems like an easy experiment to try over again any number of times.

I find that quite generally people who have had the experience above described suppose that the phenomenon can easily be accounted for by the inflation of the lungs of the levitated person. Even that explanation was sound it would not account for the alleged necessity that the lifters also should hold their lungs expanded.

This requirement, however, suggests a psycho-physiological explanation, a self-deception, which is that the lifters, by their intent on strongly holding in the breath, are able to exert a powerful effect on the force they employ in lifting.

The error in regard to the supposed buoyant effect of holding a deep breath comes from considering that it happens to a swimmer who inflates his lungs. His body rises in the water because he has expanded with air, while in the air 400 times lighter than water. But lifting the lungs with air in it has no similar effect.

Mediums are very fond of accounting their scientific investigators by facts of levitation in the dark, or in semi-darkness. But if anything can be done in the dark, with no mystical paraphernalia, why not investigate it that way?

ONCE-OVERS

ARE YOU A CREDIT OR A DRAWBACK TO YOUR OWN CHILDREN?

What sort of a background are you giving your children?

For instance, when you mention a name, does some one have a chance to say, "Yes, that is all right, but look at her father or her mother, what they are?"

Is the life you live and your standing in the community such that it would be a credit or a detriment to your offspring?

Is it a child's duty to have a parent who is respected?

Many young persons have left home rather to stay and live down the reputations of their parents.
